

Andrew Aitken

DipLaw

Partner

Andrew Aitken and his team bring a wealth of expertise in estates, succession planning and renewable energy.

With 40 years of experience in private practice, he has assisted clients with complex matters including wills, trusts, business structuring and succession planning.

A believer in a practical and holistic approach, Andrew has helped generations of clients, including acting as a director and an advisory board member.

As well as advising on the full breadth of estate planning, he is also regularly involved with probate, estate administration and associated disputes. He was recognised by Doyle's Guide as a Leading Wills, Estates and Succession Planning lawyer.

Considered a pioneer in Australia's renewable energy law, Andrew has acted on behalf of numerous landowners in relation to proposed wind and solar farms.

Andrew also helps with the sale and purchase of properties and businesses, corporate governance, risk management and shareholder agreements.

Outside the office, Andrew is a keen hiker, photographer and sports follower.
