

Chris Apostolakos

Partner

Chris practices in the area of wills and estates, property and commercial law matters.

In addition to estate planning and succession, he also assists clients with estate litigation, involving contested wills and family provision claims, drawing on his experience in mediation and settlement negotiations, exploring these avenues to avoid clients the expense and stress of legal proceedings, wherever possible and appropriate.

He also acts for clients in all types of property transactions, and for business clients providing advice across their business law needs.

Prior to joining Diamond Conway, Chris was a sole practitioner, and he has also held in-house legal roles for various organisations including the trustee of the largest superannuation fund in Australia, an investment fund manager and an aged care group.

With qualifications in business and law from the University of Technology, Chris brings a commercial and practical approach to his work, drawing on his twenty plus years' experience.

Chris is actively involved in several community and charitable organisations, and has served on several boards and committees, particularly in the Greek-Australian community and local football associations.

Away from work, Chris spends time with his family enjoying the challenges of two teenage children. An avid football fan, he still plays and coaches in his local competition, and also enjoys golf, music and movies.
